

ESTONIAN AS A NEW LANGUAGE

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Introduction

This course aims to provide a competent reading knowledge of Estonian and basic communicative skills in the language. Students who complete the course successfully will be able to assure both potential employers and academic supervisors that they possess the necessary foundation-level Estonian language skills to work with original Estonian texts and to enable them to undertake study and/or research in Estonia. The course provides an intensive introduction to Estonian grammar, a knowledge of basic vocabulary, practice in the skills of oral communication in Estonian in straightforward situations, translation and information retrieval skills, using Estonian texts on Estonian and international cultural, political and social themes.

The course is designed for beginners, i.e. for students who do not already speak or understand Estonian. It requires intensive study and applicants must provide evidence of language learning ability. Progress is carefully monitored, in particular in the early stages of the course.

Aims

The course aims to enable students to:

- develop competence in and use of Estonian to a pre-intermediate level
- develop basic communicative skills of aural comprehension and oral production
- develop the comprehension skills of reading, retrieving key information and translating from Estonian, through the use of a range of stylistically diverse materials, drawn in the main from contemporary sources
- acquire the basic writing skills necessary to facilitate language learning and support a period of study and/or research in Estonia
- develop a knowledge of grammar and syntax, lexis and register, as well as language awareness and language learning skills
- study a wide range of authentic language materials and acquire a deeper knowledge and understanding of Estonian life and culture through the materials studied.

Outcomes

On successful completion of the course students will have acquired:

- a grasp of the basic grammatical structures and vocabulary of Estonian
- comprehension of written Estonian at a pre-intermediate level
- the ability to communicate in Estonian in straightforward everyday and study-related situations
- the ability to retrieve information and translate accurately
- time management skills and the ability to work to deadlines.

Teaching

Classes meet for four hours each week over twenty teaching weeks (80 hours of contact time). Additionally, students will be expected to spend, over the whole teaching year, an average of four hours' independent study per contact hour.

In class, students will be presented with the grammar and vocabulary of Estonian ab initio. Communicative, reading and vocabulary building skills will be extended through a range of exercises, work with authentic texts and training in the effective use of a dictionary.

Assessment

Coursework

The regular, punctual and satisfactory completion of weekly assignments is a prerequisite for completion of the course, but does not contribute to the final assessment. Students' progress is monitored by means of regular tests, exercises and home assignments.

Students are also required to compile a portfolio of materials, in Estonian, relating to their individual area of interest. This is monitored by the teacher and its satisfactory completion is a prerequisite for entry to the examination.

Examination

The course is examined by means of an oral test (25% of the overall mark) and a three-hour written paper, normally held in May.

The written examination consists of two sections and is worth 75% of the total mark:

Section One:

- Task A (30% of the overall mark): a text in Estonian of 450-500 words for summary in English in 150-200 words
- Task B (20% of the overall mark): a section (120-150 words) of the Task A text for translation into English.

Section Two:

- a comprehension and information retrieval task consisting of a passage in Estonian of approximately 400 words, followed by questions in English, to be answered in English (25% of the overall mark).

The use of dictionaries is permitted in the written examination.
